

Kayaking Camp Florida March 2013

George Kun

A large network of interconnected waterways in the Melbourne Beach area in Florida has been used for long time as an international winter training camp for paddlers around the world. Our Club from Richmond Hill, ON has its spot there too, so my long time dream to be there came true this months. Since the boats are agitating the fish, circling pelicans are plunging at frightening speeds to catch the fish, coming within centimeters of the fragile kayaks and canoes, scaring the hell out of newcomers. The manatees, the huge, gentle sea cows, give the boaters unsolicited "lifts"... I guess the price of being on the water in the winter :-)
