

In Memoriam Eva Szende z"l

When I arrived into this world, she was here, waiting for me. And she had my back ever since.

She loved to teach, very early, and she taught all her life. Me, when I was young, at high school and in college later. She taught in Romania, in Israel and in Canada. When she was forced to retire because of the college policy, she dedicated herself to work on the Jewish Film Festival chairing the film selection committee, and running various book clubs. It was an extension of her teaching career, no fluff in either of those groups.

She was a complex person. She had a sense of fashion and of politics, of right and wrong. She had many friends, she had joy and love to share.

She was my sister, and I find it very hard to be in a world without her."

Susana (Zsuzsi) Katz, née Szende
